Sometimes a Loss Can be a Gain

While it is always important to honor what we've lost, sometimes a loss can also represent a chance for a new beginning.

When we lose something that we cherish, the sense of emptiness we are left behind with can be overwhelming. A space that was filled, whether in our lives or our hearts, is now a void, and the feelings of pain, loss, and separation can sometimes be difficult to bear. While it is always important to honor what we've lost, sometimes a loss can also represent a chance for a new beginning. When we are ready, the void left by a relationship, a job, or a dream can then be viewed as open space that can be filled with something new: new experiences, new knowledge, new job opportunities, new dreams, new people, and new ways to grow.

There are many ways to weave the threads of loss into a blessing. If you've lost a job or ended a relationship, your first thoughts may revolve around filling the void with a similar job or the same kind of relationship. Try not to rush into anything just to fill up the emptiness. The loss of a job can free you up to explore new opportunities, especially if you've outgrown the old one. Likewise, the loss of a relationship can give you a chance to rediscover your own interests, explore new passions, and meet different people.

If seeking the good in what seems like a bad situation makes you feel uncomfortable, then try to remember that you are not devaluing what you've lost or replacing it coldheartedly. You are surrendering to the fact that in life we sometimes have to let go and allow for what is new to enter the open spaces created by our losses. In doing so, you are honoring what has left you and welcoming the new into your life with open space, an open mind, and an open heart.

A Valentine should be so Tender

GREEN GIANT
GREAT BIG TENDER SWEET PEAS

Of course, the Green Giant's famous peas don't come in heart-shaped boxes. But do you know anything sweeter and more tender that does? "Picked and packed at the fleeting moment of perfect flavor"—wouldn't a nice big serving taste wonderful tonight?
